It is a revered pilgrimage site for BSF (Border Security Force) soldiers, a symbol of faith, and also home to wind power plants, offering insights into desert life and military history in the vast Thar Desert.

Longewala, a significant border town in the Thar Desert, Jaisalmer, Rajasthan, is famous for the decisive Battle of Longewala during the 1971 Indo-Pak War, where a small Indian force repelled a large Pakistani attack, securing a major victory with the support of the Indian Air Force (IAF). Today, it's a patriotic tourist destination featuring war memorials, museums, and battlefield remnants, allowing visitors to pay respects to the soldiers near the border (with a permit) and experience the desert
